

Tracks

Concerto

Hell! I don't even know if it has 3 movements. The title just seems to fit.

Buzzin'

Formerly "Untitled," now a flight of the bumblebee.

Better Late Than Never

The story of my life, or anyone's, for that matter.

Roving Song

To the ladies who have difficulty nesting.

Let It Rock

What can I say? I worshipped Keith Emerson.

Lullaby Till Tomorrow

In the morning, things you worried about last night - seem lighter.

Walk With Me

About soul mates and beach walks.

Sadness

Originally "Nancy's Song," but we got divorced and the song, sadder.

Castles in the Sky

To fellow travellers and the dreams we've shared.

Western Ballad

I always wanted to live in California. I finally made it.

Beauty is Truth

Keats was "on" to something.

Valley of Death (and out the other side)

Have you ever felt that the end was very near?

The Beginning Doesn't Always Lead to the End

If you haven't figured this out, get a life.

Thanks to:

Mom—for the passion she brought to motherhood;

Dad—for giving me pretty much everything I wanted;

Brother Paul—for being the strength of the family while I slept;

Kim—for helping keep the dream alive;

Muh Boyz—(Tyler, Austen & Nick) for helping me be Family Man;

Ma-chan—for seeing the Black Sabbath and Uriah Heep in me;

Doc Brown—for hopefully not "rolling over" in his grave;

Roley Poley Oley—for doing something "for free" for once;

Trenisha "Mad Mary" Young—for discovering the Silly Man;

Muh Bad Girls—for showing me how to be a bad-ass, Pimp Daddy;

Davey—for his moral support lo those many years ago;

Carol & Doug—for bootlegging me into the S.F. alternative set;

Judith—for helping me see the Castles in the Sky;

The Dream Sharers—You know who You are; and, most of all,

Muse Lynne—for waking the poet from his 20-year reverie.

Photos by Big Steve

Produced by Craig "Dante" Seganti

Graphics and Design: Monika Dalkin

Music composed and performed by Stephen Scheff

Copyrighted 1980